Thanks, Mom & Dad

Homer Anderson

These are the words of a Christian young man who left home to seek his fortune. After college he moved to a large city and rented an apartment in a complex where singles and young married couples lived. Misery, divorce, sorrow, tears, and unhappiness everywhere! He seemed well adjusted and happy. Therefore, many brought their problems to him. One night he wrote the following note to his parents:

Dear Mom & Dad: Thanks for being the kind of parents you are! Thanks for restraining us children from the evils of this world when we were young. This apartment complex is loaded with miserable creatures whose parents gave them their way just to get along. Their lives are ruined. They are the most unhappy people I've ever seen. I want to thank you for not only not breaking when we acted so ugly, but you didn't even bend. I feel I'm about the only person in this complex with a chance for a happy life in the future. If I make it, it is thanks to you. THANKS!

One of the hardest jobs Christian parents have is saying "no" when their children desperately want to do something they shouldn't. Momentary pain now will pay great dividends in the future for our children. Paul commanded, "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" (Eph. 6:4).
